Grass Rooters Declare Constitution Issue The One Demanding Notice

Organizers of 10-State Convention Will Strive for 1936 G.O.P. Victory on "Save the Constitution" Slogan.

BOOM IS AVOIDED

Fear of Centralization and Dictatorship Expressed at Springfield, Scene of Lincoln Triumphs.

Springfield, Ill., June 12 (AP)—The Constitution became a leading "grass roots" campaign issue today, with midwestern Republican politicians themselves ready "to combat the destructive forces at work in America today."

Organizers of the 10-state convention indicated they would continue to strive for a 1936 Republican victory on the basis of the "save the constitution" slogan and a direct attack upon President Roosevelt.

Following adjournment, General Chairman Harrison E. Spangler of the "grass rooters" said:

"The conference has spoken. It has reflected the true heart of the Midwest. The people of this territory have volunteered at the first call in the defense of our American institutions. No gathering of 10,000 people could have been more representative."

Points Stressed

In brief, the party rally at the Lincoln Shrine:

Stressed the "Save the Constitution" battle cry.

Made a sustained attack directly upon President Roosevelt, holding him responsible for criticized phases of the New Deal.

Avoided carefully any G. O. P. presidential boom.

Orators hammered away at the Constitution topic, expressing fear of centralization and dictatorship, during the two day convention at the scene of Abraham Lincoln's political triumphs.

The cue came from Frank O. Lowden, former governor of Illinois, who emerged from retirement to declare the administration wanted an NRA amendment with "the essential forms of American government challenged."

A Fixed Course

John D. M. Hamilton of Kansas, said it proved the existence of a "fixed course to destroy the government."

A convention trial also was given the campaign strategy of inviting Democrats to join with the Republicans.

Alfred E. Smith, mentioned in the east as a possible Republican candidate, was given a hand while prairie Republicans sang "Eagles, West Side."

Spangler, of Iowa, who with Hamilton, presided over the "grass roots" convention, sounded another popular note with his opening declaration that the Republican party was far from dead and that suggestions for new political alignments and names would be futile.

From National Chairman Henry P. Fletcher, whose chief assistant now is Hamilton, came a telegram praising the Springfield meeting as the start of "an aggressive fight that will culminate in a Republican victory" next year.

Ends Without Boom

Starting without candidates, the grass roots convention ended without a boom. Hotel lobby talk of potential nominees was kept off the floor and not a word was referred to past or potential G. O. P. nominees.

Controversies that grew out of the writing of the resolutions were quieted before the two reports—a "Declaration of grievances" against President Roosevelt and a "Declaration of Principles" advocated for 1935—were adopted by acclamation.

Capital Interested

Washington, June 12 (AP)—Republican leaders in the capital studied with interest today the report adopted by the "grass roots" conference of members of their party at Springfield, Ill.

While some party members were not yet ready to comment on the creed, Rep. Fish (R., N. Y.) said: "The platform is sound, liberal and constructive. I would have preferred to have seen a stronger plank to help the farmer regain lost world markets for agricultural surpluses; something along the line of the McNary-Haugen philosophy."

Was Legal Point

Los Angeles, June 12 (AP)—Dolores Costello Barrymore was a point ahead of her actor-husband, John Barrymore, today in legal maneuverings protecting their approaching divorce case. The former blonde beauty of the silent screen yesterday won her petition to restrain Henry Barrymore, the actor's business manager, from disposing of any of Barrymore's cash or property pending trial of her divorce suit. In ruling in favor of Mrs. Barrymore, Superior Judge Dudley S. Valentine overruled pleas of Barrymore's counsel that tying up the actor's assets would hamper his career.

Paraguay and Bolivia Sign Peace Pact Today

Buenos Aires, June 12 (AP)—Paraguay and Bolivia today signed the peace protocol putting an end to their long and bitter war in the Chaco Boreal.

A neutral military commission was to be organized at once to proceed by airplane into the Chaco in order to prepare a 12-day truce to take effect Friday.

The military commission includes the United States military attaché, Capt. Frederick Sharp.

Final acceptance of the peace plan advanced by neutral mediators to terminate the bitter Chaco war between Paraguay and Bolivia was announced early today.

Word that representatives of the belligerents had agreed to the truce came several hours after a last-minute hitch threatened to thwart the pacification efforts of five neutral American powers, including the United States.

Just before the accord was to have been signed last night, Luis Riart, Paraguayan foreign minister, said proposals for "a simple armistice" without guarantees contained in the peace formula compelled him to consult further with his government.

Paraguay previously had declared her willingness to accept the peace plan.

Rumor About Fair Grounds for a New Highway Unfounded

There's nothing to it, said Raphael Cohen of the Kingston Fair Grounds Association today when asked whether negotiations had been started by the state of New York to build a highway through that piece of property, connecting North Front street with Hurley avenue.

Business men and real estate dealers started unofficial inquiries yesterday concerning the Fair Grounds after they had heard about the road-building program. How the story originated is not known, but that it is just a rumor, wholly unfounded, is verified by the statement of Mr. Cohen.

Talking to a reporter, Mr. Cohen said that there had been no negotiations started by the state to buy any property from the Fair Grounds Association.

When asked whether any property had been sold by the association, Mr. Cohen said that several parcels of land had been purchased by a local realtor for the purpose of speculating. Further than that he had nothing to say.

The Fair Grounds has been used for some years as a baseball field, although it never has been a paying proposition. Several years ago the big grandstand burned to the ground, making the field less desirable for semi-pro ball which has been on the wane ever since the old Colonials had to quit because of poor support on the part of the public.

One presumption about the origin of the story concerning the building of a road through the Fair Grounds is that some person heard a prominent uptown merchant was interested in procuring some of the land for a parking ground, and surmised he had some inside information concerning the construction of a new portion of roadway connecting North Front street with the state highway to Ellenville.

Several of the persons who talked about the matter said they believed the merchant was interested from the standpoint of being ready to build a grocery and provision store on the property adjoining the road. Others were of the opinion that speculators were anxious about parcels of land that would be on the route of the new road and intending to demand fancy prices from the state.

Under county operates a quarry on the western side of the Fair Grounds, and likely if a road were built it would have to run over some of this land, but the engineering department had heard nothing from the state concerning any road construction.

Those who talked of the road through the Fair Grounds were more concerned that they were stating upon hearing that Washington avenue, running past North Front street to the new Remondale Boulevard had been surveyed.

A checkup with the city engineer's office revealed that a survey had been made, but nothing else had been done concerning plans for any construction work. This department had nothing official to say concerning any proposed work on the street, but the reporter cautioned that the subjects talked about that the survey was made with the thought of having figures ready for a P.W.A. project.

West Point, N. Y., June 12 (AP)—The text of President Roosevelt's speech to the graduating class of the U. S. Military Academy today follows:

As one who was born and reared within a few miles of West Point, I have always been familiar with the long and glorious record of the U. S. Military Academy; and I have always thought of the officers and cadets stationed here as my friends and neighbors. I wish I could have been here to attend in person the brilliant ceremonies, reviews and the entertainments of the past few days.

At this moment we come to the culmination—an event which marks not only the close of four years of preparation for a great career, but also the induction into the army of the United States of its annual infusion of new blood whereby our military leadership is kept young, forward-looking and virile.

Personality Democracy This academy, with its sister school of Annapolis, are the personification of democracy in the equality of opportunity they afford, uninfluenced by prior social position or economic standing. They nurture patriotism and devotion to country. They teach that honor, integrity and the faithful performance of duty are to be valued above all personal advantage or advancement. Their success is written in the long and brilliant record of service which their graduates rendered to the nation. It is true that in your curriculum you have been studying a profession—one in which the need of specialization has greatly increased in recent years. But this is true of many other professions. The development of modern "civilization" calls for specialization.

A National Outlook Yet, with specialization it is essential that those who enter upon a profession, civilian or military, must eternally keep before their eyes the practical relationship of their own profession to the rights, the hopes and the needs of the whole body of citizens who make up the nation. One of the most difficult tasks of government today is to avoid the grandstanding of any one group and to keep the main objective of the general good clear and unimpaired.

Integral Relationship The captain of a company will fail if in thinking only of his company he forgets the relationship of his company to the company on his left—the relationship of his company to the regiment as a whole. The success of a commander of an army must give consideration to all of the units which make up his army and in addition must remember the relationship of the existence, the condition and the ultimate strength of his reserves and the civilian population which is serving the same cause behind the lines.

A Memorable Incident A sense of proportion is essential to the effective attainment of any great objective. I shall always remember a day in the summer of 1918 when I visited the headquarters of General Foch, the commander-in-chief of the allied and associated armies. With a single aide I motored from Paris and came to a delightful old chateau far behind the lines and lying within its little walled park in the most peaceful, bucolic surroundings you can imagine. One sentry at the gate. Within the park a few chickens and a couple of cows. At the door, nobody. In answer to our ring, the door was opened by a captain and in a moment we found ourselves in the presence of General Foch, who was sitting in a comfortable chair in a large drawing room, reading a French novel. I spent an hour with the general and discovered that his entire staff consisted of half a dozen officers and a dozen privates.

While I was there a young British dispatch rider came in bearing the daily report from Marshal Haig. That report was written in longhand on one sheet of paper. It said in effect: "My Dear General: No advances or retreats of major importance today. Reserves increased 1,500 men since yesterday. They now total 275,000. Very sincerely yours."

A Moment of Simplicity I marveled at the simplicity of the general's headquarters and at the apparent lack of detail which he received from the generals in command of the various armies. Foch said to me: "If I concerned myself with details, I could not win the war. I can consider only major advances or major retreats. The knowledge of movements of two or three battalions here or there would confuse me by diverting my attention from the great objective. Only major results and major strategy concern a commander-in-chief. Most especially am I concerned with the reserve power of men, of guns, of ammunition and of supplies. That includes

Gonzales Arrest Seen As Possible Solution of Four-Year-Old Case

Prudencio Gonzales, Held at Welsh, W. Va., for Stick-up of Highway Employees at Kerhonkson; Officers Leave.

$5,000 AT GUN-POINT

Several Men, Some Spaniards, Parted With Life-Savings, When Bandits Staged Hold-up.

With the arrest of Prudencio Gonzales at Welsh, W. Va., it is believed a four-year-old stick-up job at Kerhonkson has been solved. For the last four years the authorities have been trailing Gonzales, alias "Red" Rubio, and he was arrested several days ago in West Virginia and the local authorities notified. He is wanted here in connection with a stick-up at a state highway camp near Kerhonkson back in 1931 when several employees on the Minnewaska Trail route were held up by a man and relieved of a large sum of money.

There had been a pay day and the usual gambling games had been going on in the boarding camp of the men. Late at night the place was held up and the men relieved of cash said to amount to about $5,000. Four of the victims were interviewed recently after Gonzales was located in an endeavor to ascertain whether they had a good enough look at the hold-up leader to identify him. What the men were able to do has not been made public but this morning Deputy Sheriff Clayton Vredenburg left the court house at 3:30 o'clock and went to Highland where he was joined by Sergeant John Lockhart of the State Troopers and they left at 4 o'clock for West Virginia to bring back their man.

Had Been a Party

At the time of the stick-up there had been a party at the shack and at an early hour in the morning the stick-up men entered the place with revolvers and demanded that the men there donate. Among the victims were a number of Spanish employees on the job. Some of the men parted with their life savings which they had on the premises. Since he holds up the troopers and other officials under the direction of District Attorney Cleon B. Murray have been on the trail of the hold-up men.

Other Questioning Gonzales will probably be questioned by Dutchess county authorities in relation to a $6,000 robbery of checks issued to patients at the Castle Point Hospital in September of 1931. Similarity between the Kerhonkson job and the Dutchess county job has caused officials to desire an interview with Gonzales. Since his disappearance from this locality the officials have traced Gonzales through various sections of the country.

Reply Is Promised

Lockport, N. Y., June 12 (AP)—A public reply to Republican attacks likening him to New York's notorious "Boss" Tweed was promised today by Postmaster General James A. Farley. Farley, State and National Democratic chairman, belittled charges tossed at him and the National administration by speakers at the GOP "Grass Roots" conference in Springfield, Ill., and repeated his prediction that "the people are for the President and his policies and he will win in 1936." He said he would reply to the "Boss Tweed" accusation when he returns to Washington.

National Parks Jobs

Washington, June 12 (AP)—Asking for $3,444,132 from the work relief fund for a survey of the nation's recreational needs, the national park service estimated today that it would provide jobs for 4,636 persons, including 2,872 semi-skilled laborers.

Search for Mahan Goes On in Montana, Waleys' Arraignment Unsettled

Lindbergh Law May Be Invoked in Weyerhaeuser Case, Because of Boy's Shaken Nerves, But Authorities are Silent.

AVIATOR INNOCENT

Man in Mysterious Airplane at Salt Lake City Identified Himself as a Salesman.

(Copyright, 1935, By Associated Press) Salt Lake City, June 12.—The air of expectancy around the search for William Mahan, scar-faced suspect in the George Weyerhaeuser kidnapping, subsided early today but a heavy force of officers remained at Butte, Mont., in the belief he still was in that vicinity.

After federal agents and police had followed up dozens of clues without success, Jere Murphy, chief of police, said he believed the 32-year-old ex-convict had escaped through a tight net of police patrols, possibly hitchhiking out of the country.

Chief Murphy's assistant, Jack Duggan, however, said emphatically that the much sought suspect could not have slipped through the police lines and that he still was in hiding in or near Butte.

Mahan was seen there last Sunday when he abandoned a motor car containing $15,155 of the $200,000 ransom paid for the release of the nine-year-old Tacoma, Wash., timber fortune heir.

"We will have to settle down and wait him out," said Duggan. "He knows this country and he had a hideout prepared for him."

Reports Denied

Even federal agents broke their characteristic silence to deny reports that their intense activity near Butte indicated Mahan had been captured. K. R. Dederick, in charge of the "G-men" concentrated at Butte, received a telephone call from the Department of Justice at Washington last night demanding: "What is this arrest story all about?"

Dederick said he knew no more than his superiors.

Harmon M. Waley, young ex-convict, and his blonde wife, who are reported to have confessed their part in the kidnapping, still were held here, but arrival of a complaint charging them with violating the Federal Kidnaping Law was expected to throw into operation machinery for their removal to Tacoma.

The Lindbergh law charges were filed against the Waleys and Mahan, after an announcement by Federal authorities that it had been determined the kidnap victim was taken across the Washington state line into Idaho.

"Maybe yes, and maybe no," was the reply given by E. J. Connelley, special agent in charge of the investigation here, when asked whether the Waleys would be arraigned today and rushed to Tacoma.

State Kidnap Law

Previously it had been indicated the couple would be returned to Washington to face the untested state kidnap law which carries an automatic death penalty unless the jury recommends leniency.

The Lindbergh law calls for a death sentence only if the victim has been harmed. Members of the district attorney's staff and Federal agents at Tacoma declined to comment on the possibility the death sentence might be asked on the ground George's nervous system had been harmed.

This question came up when it was recalled that George's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Weyerhaeuser, Jr., had issued a statement shortly after he was liberated, in which they said:

George upset nervously. "George was frightened and nervously upset and unable to answer questions clearly. The terrible ordeal he has gone through has brought him back a badly shaken little boy."

Although a mysterious airplane was reported to have headed for this city with the kidnap victim aboard, the only person to arrive at the local airport from the north was a man who identified himself as a bird seed salesman. At Tacoma, members of the family said the child was not at home but that he was not out of the state.

More than half of the $200,000 ransom had been recovered today. An accounting of Waley's purported share shows that $90,700 was recovered at a mountainside cache; $4,000 was allegedly burned by Waley when he attempted to rid himself of evidence and approximately $300 was reported spent by him and his wife.

NRA Forces Win in Test To Eliminate "Rider" On Pay of Federal Officials

Talmadge Says Roosevelt Violated Campaign Plank

Chicago, June 12 (AP)—President Roosevelt was charged today by Governor Eugene Talmadge of Georgia with violating his campaign promise calling for governmental economy.

In a prepared address to the Chicago Association of Commerce here, the Georgia governor quoted the President as saying in a campaign address in Pittsburgh: "I shall approach the problem of carrying out the plain precept of our party, which is to reduce the cost of the current federal government operations by 25 per cent."

Instead, said Talmadge, the administration has instituted taxes which "have bled the American people white, and have filled the coffers of the government with more money than the wildest dreams of Croesus."

During the Hoover administration, Talmadge said, government plunged into business as it never had before, placing "new taxes, new restrictions and new handicaps" on business.

"Hoover's plan," he continued, "has been multiplied 100-fold by the present Democratic administration in Washington."

He denounced the TVA and predicted "the same fate that has befallen the NRA is due for the AAA and its momentous processing taxes."

Bus Lines Are Still Continuing to Use The Uptown Terminal

During the razing of the old Kingston Hotel on Crown street, the various bus lines operating from the Uptown Bus Terminal still continue to use the terminal grounds although Matthew Hasbrouck, manager of the Bus Terminal, is without his usual waiting room and office for the transaction of business. All of the local bus lines which make the Uptown Terminal a regular stop continue to use the grounds as well as the Hudson Transit Express line which operates between Kingston and New York. At present this is the only New York bus line to operate a regular schedule out of the Uptown Terminal and this line operates an express service direct to Times Square on a 3 1/2 hour running time. When the old hotel is torn down and the new terminal building erected the Adirondack Short Line will make the Uptown Terminal one of its stopping places.

Work is progressing so rapidly on the tearing down of the historic old building that Lyman T. Schiendorfer, contractor who has the job, expects to have the entire structure down by the last of the week.

Not only has Matt Hasbrouck been chased out by the rapid approach of the wrecking crews but there has also been a very welcome eviction of another family from the old premises. For some time there has been a family of pole-cats or what are more commonly known as skunks, inhabiting the cellar of the premises. As the wreckers approached they were greeted with a familiar odor and about the premises there still lingers the faint trace of the evicted family.

Large Parking Place

When the property is cleared of the old hotel building there will be a large parking place for cars. Mr. Hasbrouck intends to have day parking for a dime and also operate the parking grounds for steady customers at a reduction in rate by the month. This monthly parking will entitle the parkers to a stall which may be used as many times a day as required on the minimum fee. He will also operate a gas station and car washing station. A contract has been entered into whereby he will sell Richfield gasoline and supplies. With a direct entrance to the new Sears, Roebuck & Company store on Wall street the parking grounds will be very desirable for shoppers.

For the bus terminal the first story of the present brick building at the extreme upper end will remain. This building which is in good condition will have the two upper stories removed and a new roof will be placed over the old walls. The building will be 47 feet long and will house the bus terminal, restaurant, and barber shop as well as office for Mr. Hasbrouck, and there will be a waiting room for patrons. The lower portion at the rear will be retained and may be used as an outdoor refreshment place.

That portion of the old Kingston Hotel which is being razed has stood for many years and from time to time additions have been made to the building. The brick portion which will be used as a bus terminal is comparatively new, having been erected about 40 years ago.

Administration In Position To Seek Reconsideration of Vote by Which "Rider" Was Added, But Long's Filibuster Threatens.

UTILITIES FIGHT

Bitter-End Battle Now Confronts The Bill To Abolish "Unnecessary" Holding Companies.

Washington, June 12 (AP)—The Senate tangle over NRA legislation was partially cleared today when administration forces won a test vote looking to the elimination of the "rider" requiring Senate confirmation of all federal officials drawing $4,000 a year or more.

The vote placed the administration in position to seek reconsideration of the vote by which the "rider" was added to the resolution extending NRA in abridged form but a possible filibuster by Senator Long (D., La.) still threatened.

The Senate's action indicated that the strategy of the Roosevelt forces in quickly recessing late yesterday after the amendment had been added, would be successful. They wanted to defeat the rider to clear the way for quick action on the NRA resolution before the recovery law expires Sunday night.

The rider was offered by Senator Gore (D., Okla.). It was opposed by administration officials, not only because of its nature, but because it would complicate action on the NRA resolution which they were trying to rush through.

The Utilities Fight Another bitter-end fight now confronts the bill to abolish "unnecessary" utility holding companies. The measure, which passed the Senate, 56 to 32, late yesterday after President Roosevelt had intervened to prevent a sweeping alteration, dropped today into the hands of a sharply divided House commerce committee.

The committee has been struggling with a companion measure for four months. When the legislation will reach the House floor for debate appeared highly uncertain.

"We will continue to work as far as we can, and we ought to be able to work pretty fast from now on," was all Chairman Rayburn (D-Tex.) would say.

Such words as "fraud," "chicanery," "blood suckers" and "thieves" sprinkled the debate which raged in the Senate right up to the moment of yesterday's voting. After the decision, friends and foes of the bill continued to make clashing pronouncements.

A statement that the Senate vote was "an action to lengthen the nation's breadlines" was made by Philip H. Gadsden, chairman of the committee of public utility executives.

Senator Wheeler (D., Mont.), who had asserted that the bill would restore public confidence shaken by such events as the insull collapse.

The abolition feature of the bill has drawn most fire. A House subcommittee has been divided, three and three, between abolition and mere regulation.

By the margin of one vote, the Senate yesterday turned down an amendment by Senator Dieterich (D-Ill.) to eliminate provisions empowering the securities commission to dissolve or reorganize by 1942 all utility holding companies it found contrary to "public policy." This was after Wheeler read a pencilled memorandum from President Roosevelt opposing such a change.

One section of the measure is designed to provide machinery to break up nation-wide holding companies into "rationally and geographically integrated systems." They would be deprived of control of all but one type of utility, and their activities would be confined to one section of the country.

The 2,000 or so men will be at the old amusement park site following the parade.

Two Accord Youths Hurt In Auto Crash

Accord, June 12.—The community was greatly shocked to hear of the serious automobile accident of two well known local young men. The accident occurred a little north of Stone Ridge, Sunday morning, when Roland Voigt of Accord and Sonny Doremus of Kyserike were returning from Kingston. The Ford roadster left the road and crashed into a large tree, wrecking the car and seriously injuring both boys.

George Hartford of Stone Ridge took the boys to the office of Dr. Shea, where they remained for several hours, until they were able to be taken to their homes. At the present time both boys are quite comfortable, although severely cut and bruised.

WHITEFACE HIGHWAY TO OPEN EARLY IN JULY

Lake Placid, N.Y., June 12 (AP).—The eight-mile-long Whiteface Mountain highway, a memorial to New York state sons who lost their lives in the World War, will be officially opened early in July.

This was revealed today as Col. Frederick Stuart Greene, superintendent of public works, and the Memorial Highway Commission prepared for a final inspection next Monday of the practically completed highway. The road is on the eastern slope of Whiteface Mountain in the Adirondacks. The date of the opening likely will be between July 4 and July 7.

Construction of the highway began Christmas Day, 1931, when President Roosevelt was governor, and cost approximately $1,000,000. Tolls will be charged to pay off bonds issued for the project.

Mexican Bean Beetle Control

Most of the Mexican bean beetles have now escaped from winter quarters and have begun to feed on the young bean plants and lay eggs. The beetle is about one-third-inch in length, pale yellowish to brownish in color and each wing cover is marked with eight small black spots. The young larvae, which hatch from the eggs, are yellowish in color and are covered with stout spines.

The Farm Bureau has the following suggestions to make for the control of this pest which was found in practically every bean patch during the past two years. The beans may be either sprayed or dusted. Several spray or dust formulas may be used.

If spraying is preferred, one ounce of Magnesium arsenate mixed with four parts of hydrated lime or one part of Calcium arsenate and six parts of hydrated lime, may be used. A new material, known as "Rotenone" which is not a poison, is recommended as a dust, particularly for use after the beans have formed.

The Rotenone is purchased in a material known commercially as "Derris." One part of Derris, testing 5% actual rotenone, and nine parts of high grade talc mixed together makes an excellent and effective dusting material. Rotenone is also less likely to burn the leaves than some of the other materials.

"OLD GRADS" SET RECORD AT UNIVERSITY REUNION

Iowa City, Ia. (AP)—All records for reunion attendance at the University of Iowa were broken when 1,003 "old grads" returned to the campus to participate in annual commencement festivities. The previous record at commencement time was 659. O. H. Brainerd of Iowa City, who was graduated in 1876, represented the oldest class. Honors for the largest representation went to the class of 1910 with 78 members present.

Exemplification of K. of C. Fourth Degree

On Sunday, June 9, a large delegation of Kingston Knights of Columbus went to Troy where at 3 o'clock in the afternoon they witnessed the exemplification of the fourth degree of the order on a class of 75 candidates. This degree is known as the patriotic degree, and was conducted under the direction of Patrick T. Murphy of Kingston, master of the third New York district, Calvert Province. He was assisted in the rendition by a team of ten from the first New York district in Brooklyn. The color guard and choir of Albany Assembly also took an active part in the work. This was the first rendition of the fourth degree in this district in several years and it was largely attended. Many dignitaries of the order were present, including Supreme Director Daniel A. Tobin of Brooklyn, State Deputy Michael F. Walsh of Brooklyn, John Pollard of Tarrytown, master of the second district, Edmund Whalen of Brooklyn, master of the first district, Michael M. Dunn of Oneida, past master of the fourth district, the Rev. James F. Collins, past state chaplain, and Thomas F. Morris and the Hon. James J. Nolan of Albany, past masters of the first district. The class was a most representative one, including men from Albany, Amsterdam, Cohoes, Saratoga, Schenectady, Troy and Kingston. The class from Kingston numbered 29, led by Grand Knight-elect Andrew T. Gilday and the Rev. Henry E. Herdgen, and including City Judge, Bernard A. Culleton, Abel B. Abernethy, William H. Rothery, Louis Dutto, Salem H. Krayem, Michael C. Abdallah, Edwin P. Murphy, Charles E. Murphy, Joseph J. Murphy, V. Paul Phalen, Henry J. Bruck, Joseph E. Coffey, Thomas V. Coffey, Ray W. Garaghan, Thomas L. Cloonan, John J. Bott, Peter J. Halloran, John B. Tancredi, Frank J. McCordie, Dr. Thomas E. McQuade, Kearn Egan, Francis W. Helmerie, Charles A. Wood, Edward J. Hanley, John J. Byrne, Francis A. Reis and District Deputy Charles Sbarboro.

Following the ceremonies held at the K. of C. clubhouse, a banquet was tendered to the newly initiated Sir Knights in the Crystal ballroom of the Hendrick Hudson Hotel at 7 o'clock in the evening. At the close of the dinner the speakers included Master Patrick T. Murphy of Kingston, the Hon. John F. Shannon, city treasurer of Troy, who acted as toastmaster, William J. Regan, faithful navigator of Father Van Rensselaer Assembly of Troy, the Hon. Bertram P. Kavanaugh, surrogate of Rensselaer county, State Deputy Michael F. Walsh of Brooklyn, Supreme Director Daniel A. Tobin of Brooklyn, and the Rev. Henry E. Herdgen of Kingston. The invocation was delivered by the Rev. Edward J. Burns, principal of the Catholic High School of Troy, and the closing prayer by the Rev. James H. Casey of Brooklyn, past state chaplain. There were several fine vocal numbers by local members of the Troy Assembly.

Station-to-station or person-to-person

When you want to telephone out of town and will talk to anyone at the number called, you should ask for a "station-to-station" call to that number. But if you must talk to only one particular individual (and you are not sure that he is there), specify a "person-to-person" call.

Naturally it is quicker and easier for us just to get a number for you than it is to search out and locate a particular person. That's why it costs less for a station-to-station call. By the same token, if, on a "person-to-person" call, the individual you want is not available, you incur only a nominal "report charge."

Station-to-station calls, for which reduced night rates to most points now begin at 7:00 P. M., were never before so quick, so cheap or so easy to make. If the town you want isn't in the telephone directory, the operator will give you the rate; and if you are not sure of the number you want, ask "Information." New York Telephone Company.

Harris Hit Wife on Head With an Axe

Thomas Harris, 23, of Converse Street Told Judge Culloton He Didn't Hit His Wife Intentionally—Held For Grand Jury—Other Police Court Cases.

"He struck me on the head with an axe and knocked me unconscious," said Mrs. Thomas Harris, a young negress testifying against her husband in police court this morning. She said that when she came to her husband gave her a glass of water and asked her to forgive him.

Harris, who is 25 years old, was arrested Tuesday on a warrant sworn out by his wife charging him with assault in the second degree, and the hearing had been set down for this morning.

Harris told Judge Culloton that it was true that he hit his wife over the head with the back of the axe, but he did not do it intentionally. He said he was busy chopping wood when his wife and he had an argument and he struck her.

"This is not the first time he beat me up," said the wife to the court. "He beat me when we lived on Cedar street and when we lived on Jansen avenue. I want him to stop beating me."

The Harris family resides at 4 Converse street.

After hearing both sides of the story Judge Culloton held Harris to await the action of the grand jury and fixed bail in the sum of $500.

Are Far From Home

The radio car passing through Dederick street Tuesday night saw the forms of two youths stretched out asleep on the platform of the Armour & Company plant. The boys were awakened and taken to police headquarters where they gave their age as 18 years and their home in Granite, Ill. They said their names were Louis Gentry and Harold Dombrosky.

This morning in police court Judge

Culloton gave them the opportunity to leave town. They told the judge they had a little money to buy food. Ernest Boston, a negro of Washington, D. C., picked up for public intoxication on West Shore railroad property, was given 5 days in jail.

Firestein Arrested

Irving Firestein was driving a truck down Broadway this morning on his way to open the doors of the handkerchief factory on lower Broadway, and was placed under arrest on a charge of driving past a red signal light at Broadway and Foxhall avenue. He was also arrested for not having a driver's license with him. He furnished bail for his appearance later in police court.

also is designed for transoceanic service, flew here to join in the welcome. The plane, with 28 passengers, averaged 128 m.p.h. an hour on its flight from Biscarosse. The Normandie, averaging 30.31 knots, crossed from Ambrose Lightship to Bishop's Rock in four days, three hours, 28 minutes. FRIENDLY COOPERATION.

We Americans are less "gripped" than we used to be at suggestions of cooperation with the British in world affairs. It is possible to read even the recent speech of Anthony Eden, "Lord Privy Seal," on Anglo-American friendship, and remain calm even if we don't go all the way with him. "Friendship with the United States," he tells his British audience in London, "is of the first importance. It exists today, and it will grow, and everything that we can do to promote that friendship
 will be readily and eagerly done.
 There is nothing incompatible between friendship with the United States and membership in the League of Nations. It is not we or the League of Nations or any government that has tied us with Europe. Geography has done that."
 So Britain wants to go along with the League and at the same time go along with us. This is a difficult bit of straddling, but perhaps not impossible. America and the League may be about equally important to her. And we, in recent years, have actually been cooperating about equally with both, while having no official bond with either.

There could be no possibility of an official alliance with the British,
 but friendly cooperation in matters of mutual interest may naturally strengthen. The United States and the British Empire today are of about equal power and importance in the world, and of about equal importance to each other, and the bonds of race, language and culture are strong. There should be at least no possibility of enmity between us.

SKILLED MECHANICS

Many will be surprised to learn that one thing retarding industrial recovery is a shortage of skilled mechanics. Metal manufacturers employing 115,000 wage earners report that they already lack about 1,200 skilled craftsmen, and would face a shortage of 123,000 if they were back to normal operation. Moreover, they can hardly get back to normal without such skilled men.

Age and death alone rob industry of its most valuable workers at the rate of five per cent a year. Thus there is a loss of more than 25 per cent from this cause during the depression. Another cause is the training of operators for special machines
 instead of training all-round mechanics adaptable to any machine. Another is deterioration of skill from prolonged unemployment, so that the mechanics have to be retained before they are useful. There have been unwise restrictions, too, in apprenticeship rules and code provisions.

Manufacturers say the shortage
 has been made still worse by the government drawing so many highly skilled workmen from private industry for public work. To remedy this situation, they urge the discontinuance of "unfair competition" by the government, and want it to pay less than standard wage scales on public relief work so that their skilled men will come back to them. They also ask the government to use some of its relief funds to finance the training or retraining of unemployed labor. Enterprising young men will not overlook the opportunities offered them by this novel situation in the mechanical trades. There is obviously a future for those who obtain the necessary training.

SINCE COLUMBUS CROSSED

It took Christopher Columbus 63 days to cross the Atlantic from the Old World to the New. In 1919, the Savannah, a sailing vessel with advanced paddle operated by a steam auxiliary, crossed to Liverpool in 26 days. By 1928, Atlantic crossing time had been reduced still further to 15 days. From then on records were steadily made and broken, but by small margins. The Lusitania, the Mauretania, the Europa, the Bremen, the Rex and now the Normandle have all made the crossing between four and five days.

 It is a good thing that it no longer
 takes weeks to cross the Atlantic.
 Speed has increased the amount of travel between the Old and New Worlds. That speed has not insured much international trade as would be good for us all is the fault of human blunders in statecraft and business. If the world had advanced as much in efficient dealing with human problems as it has in the building and handling of ships, there would be no world depression today.
 In navigating the unknown seas of economics, we are not much ahead of Columbus.

AMPHIBIAN CARS.

A seagoing motor car performed
 the notable feat of crossing the Channel from France to England the other day. It might be called a historic moment when that dripping amphibian rolled up the beach and chugged its way on to London. It has a boat-shaped body and paddle-wheels. The speed was nothing to brag of. It took more than eight hours for the crossing, which a ship
 would make in one hour and an airplane in a few minutes. Yet there is significance in the trip.

Suppose that water car were developed into a military machine, and France or Germany launched a great fleet of such craft for an invasion of England. The "light little" might not be so tight any more. It would obviously be good for exploring parties in lands where there are no bridges. African and South American explorers may soon be using something of the kind.
 The ultimate craft may be a triphibian, at home in water, land and air. But we are still far from that wonder.

 GALL-STONES

If everybody who has gall-stones was to undergo operation for their removal our surgeons would be kept busy for a long time doing nothing else.

Physicians are often asked if anything can be taken to dissolve the gall-stones, and their answer is that nothing will dissolve the ordinary or common variety of gall-stones. Stones formed of coloring or pigment matter only, may be dissolved, but they occur only rarely, following certain blood diseases such as malaria.

When there are no symptoms from the stones and most gall bladders
 containing stones cause no symptoms,
 there is of course no treatment necessary.

Where, however, there are repeated attacks of gall-stone colic, or inflammation of the gall bladder with jaundice, then the gall bladder should be removed.

What about medical treatment?
 Generally speaking, medical treatment of gall-stones that are causing attacks of colic, is not very successful. The patient is kept as quiet as possible, and lives on a restricted diet—a sheltered kind of life.

Many of these patients are very stout and there may be other conditions present that may make operation dangerous.

Dr. James Walton, London, in Proceedings of the Royal Society of Medicine, says:

"On mechanical grounds, the only curative treatment for gall-stones in operation, but where conditions are bad for operation the danger of operation must be carefully balanced against the discomfort and the possible complications which may arise from the presence of the stones in the gall bladder. Medical treatment may give a certain amount of relief but it must not be continued too long for the onset of complications—
 long-continued colic, acute inflammation of the gall bladder, impaction or lodging of the gall stone in the little tube carrying bile from gall bladder and liver—endanger the patient's life and greatly add to the risk of operation."

The points to remember then are
 (a) that gall-stones are common and cause no symptoms in most cases;
 (b) that when symptoms repeatedly occur operation is the only treatment; (c) that medical treatment
 when stones are causing symptoms is not advisable unless surgery is considered too dangerous; (d) that nothing will dissolve the gall-stones
 usually found in the gall-bladder.

ENEMY'S KISS

SYNOPSIS: Alison Kede and Guy Lumley at last have straightened out the tangle between them.
 They also have determined that Daphne Sumers who is marrying Alison's father today is the same woman who ruined Guy's practice on the Riviera, and killed her former husband in the Belgian Guy was finishing an explanation of his presence in Daphne's vacant house in Sussex.

Chapter 19

"I REALLY meant to tell you the whole truth that first time we junched," said Guy, "only you said something—"

"I mentioned Daphne?"

"Yes. Her name was Daphne Poynter. So I thought I'd go warily and find out a little more first about Mrs. Daphne Sumers and whether she was the same woman before I said anything."

Alison nodded.

"I'd have told you, meant to tell you, the next time we met," he went on. "But when you told me it was her house and how your father met her and that he was marrying her in six weeks, I saw suddenly why she might want me out of her way. And I didn't want to frighten you."

"Then you're pretty sure she is that woman?"

"Plumb certain."

Alison pushed back her chair, stood up. The world was real again and it had darkened suddenly.

"But then," the words came in a scared whisper, "but then you think that she may mean to do the same thing again to my father?"

"I'm afraid so, if she marries him."

"But she is marrying father now, today, at one-thirty!"

The bronze-faced clock over the archway of the stairs pointed to ten minutes to one.

"Come on!" Guy jumped to his feet and fled towards the stairs, digging in his pockets as he ran. The cashier said, "Your bill, sir?" But he threw a note down on the desk without waiting for change.

They raced up Southampton
 Street and scrambled, breathless,
 into the car.

"Where'll she be?"

"I don't know," admitted Alison.
 "He was to fetch her from her flat,
 but I don't know when. She might be there."

"We'll try it first, anyway."

He threw in the clutch and the car gathered speed down hill. Alison, holding on tight as the speedometer
 mounted and the light car rocked,
 said, "I'm afraid father won't believe you!"

"I'm not counting on that. I'm going to see her and bluff."

A policeman's hand was going out as Guy tried to dodge between two buses travelling in opposite directions: he missed them both by landing on the island. He hit the centre post neatly, tried to back off and found his way blocked by a large blue arm.

"Driving to the danger," said the policeman grimly. "I'll see your license, please."

"Oh, please," Alison leaned forward, "we didn't mean to do anything wrong! But it's terribly urgent. It's—it's a matter of life and death!"

The policeman was sympathetic
 but unimpressed.

"Sorry, miss, I've got to do my duty. I'll see your insurance, too, sir, please."

He was a large policeman, even as policemen go, and he was leisurely.

"LISTEN, Guy. I'll get a taxi and go on. I'll try and keep her."

"No! You mustn't go near her—it's not safe!"

But his protest was lost. Alison was already out of the car and running to the pavement.

"Flat's number 13," she called back to him as, waving she hailed a taxi.

She was getting into it as Guy leaped out and tried to follow. A ham-sized hand in a white glove fastened on his arm and dragged him back.

Guy was not a light weight. He gave a shove. The policeman reeled his helmet did an undignified somersault into the road but he held on.

With one word "Assault!" he clammed up the case and blew upon his whistle.

Guy found himself staring back over his shoulder at a taxi's tail lamp as it vanished while two large policemen propelled him some two paces in the direction of the nearest police station.

Alison, in the taxi, had seen some of these last events.

Nine minutes past one! Would she be in time? Not far to go but the taxi-driver had no romantic urge to hurry.

As the taxi drew up, Alison lumbled out. She ran up one flight of stone steps, through a short, dark passage and down three more steps to a little half-glass door set corner-wise and marked in brass "13."

A slatternly-looking scrap of a maid opened the door.

"Mrs. Sumers can't see no one now, she's packing." The maid stood in the crack of the door and held it tight.

"But I must," Alison was desperate.

"If it's the installment people, she said you was to come back tomorrow and you can take the stuff away."

"It's nothing to do with money!"
 Alison almost wailed. "I've come from Major Rede, who's marrying Mrs. Sumers!"

"If you'd said that at first," grumbled the maid and opened the rest of the door, letting Alison into a narrow hall.

"She's in there," said the maid, tipping a grimy thumb towards the first door. Considering that this information was enough, she went down the passage, leaving Alison to find her way in alone.

The door gave on the sitting room,
 which she had seen once before, but it was exceedingly untidy. A small white dog, a bilcock of tissue paper and a trunk occupied the middle of the floor and Daphne was on her knees trying to get a trunk shut. She did not look round.

"THEL, come and sit on this,"
 she ordered.

Alison sat down on the trunk;
 Daphne, her head bent, heaved. The lock clicked and she sat back on her heels in triumph.

"Yes," said Alison. "It's me."

"I see it!" Daphne rose, dusting down her dress. "You've changed your mind then?"

"I've come to see you," said Alison.
 "I—I've got to talk to you."

"Oh?" Daphne reached out for a label, one of a pile which lay addressed on a low chair. "I'm afraid I haven't time to listen now. I've got to be ready to go with your father in a quarter of an hour to the registry office. If you want to talk, why not come along with us?"

Alison had come into the room feeling rather frightened but the cool tone of the woman, the rememberance of the fact that she was the centerpiece of Guy's story, made her forget her fear in a rush of anger.

"All right. I'll come if you like,"
 she flung it at her, "but if you won't listen to me, I'll have to tell father, that's all—Mrs. Poynter."

The silence lasted while a person might count five; then Daphne put out her hand, took a cigarette from a packet which lay open on the chair and lit it slowly, looking steadily at Alison above the flame.

"I see," she said. "Well, what do you want to say?"

"Only this," Alison faced her standing. "I've found out all about you. I don't want to be beastly but you can either clear out now and leave a note for father saying that it's off, or I shall have to tell him the truth. I'm not going on my own word either. I've got someone else to prove what I'm saying."

"Dr. Lumley, of course!" Daphne gave a faint crouch of laughter.

"Yes, Dr. Lumley," Alison was not shaken now. She felt safe. He would be here at any minute to back her up and at all costs she must keep Daphne until then. "He knows all about you—and the anonymous letters that you wrote—and everything."

Daphne drew, "Everything? Be a little more explicit!"

"All right!" involuntarily, Alison's eyes flew to the square plated clock on the oval writing table. One, twelve... "If you want me to tell you, He knows that you murdered
 your husband, and that you hate him because he tried to stop you and that you wrote to all his patients telling stories about him to get even."

Somehow, somewhere, it was missing! As she spoke, Alison could see that Daphne was smiling; a tight-lipped, unkind smile. She said lightly, "When you've quite finished, repeating all these lies, perhaps,
 you'll let me speak? You don't know,
 I suppose, that you can get two years
 in jail for repeating lies like that!"

Alison did not believe it but even if it was true she did not mind. She was worked up now to a pitch when nothing mattered any more.

Alison is horrified at Daphne's sinister plan, tomorrow.

The WORLD of STAMPS

By QUINTON JAMES

In honor of Jules Paul Benjamin Delessert, founder of the first sayings bank in France, the French government has issued a 75-centime engraved stamp in dull green on the occasion of the annual International Savings Bank congress held in Paris.

Baron Delessert is represented holding a piece of parchment in one hand, a quill pen in the other. Across the bottom runs the inscription,
 "Benjamin Delessert 1773-1847 Fondateur des Caissees d'Epargne."

When the revolution broke out,
 Delessert, who was born in Lyons,
 was travelling in England. He rushed home to join the Paris National Guard—that was in 1790—and became an officer in 1793. His father,

Etienne Delessert (1735-1816), bought him out of the army two years
 later to manage his bank.

Beside his fame as a banker, Benjamin Delessert was known as the founder of the first cotton factory at Passy in 1801, and of a sugar factory in 1802, for which he was created a baron of the empire. He sat in the chamber of deputies many years, frequently backing humane measures.

Czechoslovakian Hero

General Rostislav Milan Stefanik,
 the Slovak astronomer who served as an aviator in the French army during the world war, is depicted in French uniform on a new 50-haler dull green stamp from Czechoslovakia.

With Masaryk and Benes, Stefanik helped achieve Czechoslovakia's independence. He was killed in a plane crash in 1919 near his native village of Kocakovsky.

Also from Praha hall a set of two commemorative, honoring Czech soldiers who fell in the world war.
 Denominations: 1 korona, rose; 2
 korona, blue. Picture: the Czechoslovakian war memorial at Arras, France. Inscription: "1915-1935, Arras."

Lichtenstein Eagles

Augmenting the latest airmail set of Lichtenstein, which started with the issuance of a 50-rappen emerald stamp about two months ago, are four attractive
 new stamps from the central European principality.

The new quartet consists of 10-rappen, violet; 15-rappen, red of orange; 20-rappen, carmine; and 30-rappen, dark blue. Each of these stamps bears a different picture of one or more eagles—mostly in flight.

MEET the WIFE

Mrs. James Hamilton Lewis

If the dapper Senator James Hamilton Lewis wanted to, he could have his fortune told every day—and by his own wife. . . . Palm reading is only one of the many accomplishments of the gracious spouse of the senior senator from Illinois. . . . It has won her the nickname of "Gypsy." . . . During the World War on the battlefields of France she nursed wounded soldiers. She has been decorated three times by the French government for her work, the most recent being last year when the cross of the Legion of Honor was conferred upon her. . . . She also is one of the few American women to be presented twice at the court of St. James—in 1923 and in 1934. . . . As Rose Lawton Douglas she was born in Scriven county, Georgia, the daughter of George Baskerville Douglas. . . . She was educated in France and Switzerland and for a while was a newspaper correspondent. . . . In Chicago Mrs. Lewis served as a trustee of the recent world's fair. . . . In Washington she leads the life of a busy hostess in the capital's social whirl, but is always "at home" to visiting delegations from Illinois.

Health Board Hears Of Odors and Scents; Fever Under Control

Health Officer Sanford Reports 20 Cases of Scarlet Fever in May, But Fever is Now Under Control—Cesspool Odors and Scents From Cleaning Cattle Cars Discussed.

The health board at its regular meeting Tuesday evening at the city hall discussed a variety of subjects ranging from cesspool odors, the scents arising from cleaning out cattle cars, and the control of the outbreak of scarlet fever of which 20 cases were reported here in May, mostly among the pupils of Schools 7 and 8. Michael Abdallah of Broadway appeared before the board in reference to the custom of the Cities Service gas station at Broadway and Franklin street greasing automobiles near his house.

Mr. Abdallah said that when the gas station men sprayed the cars being lubricated that he was forced to keep the windows facing the station closed, and that his family were unable to enjoy their porch. He said he had asked the station proprietor if a brick wall could not be built at the point where cars were lubricated and that would abate the nuisance.

The matter was referred to the health officer and sanitary committee who will visit the gas station and look over the situation. Plumbing Inspector Charles H. Gregory reported that several residents on Spruce street complained of odors arising from cesspools and that they desired a sewer built in that street so that the use of cesspools could be discontinued. He said he had investigated conditions and found the complaints justified. He said that ERB was planning to run a sewer in that locality, and thought that Spruce street houses could be hooked into it.

Mayor C. J. Heiselman, who presided at the meeting, said plans had been prepared and that the matter would be taken care of.

Cattle Car Cleaning. Sanitary Inspector John Melville said complaints had been received from residents along West Strand regarding the custom of railroad men cleaning out cattle cars in that vicinity, and leaving the manure piled along the railroad tracks. The matter had been taken up with the railroad authorities and they had sent a gang of men who had cleaned up, but the nuisance had not been abated for the cars were now being cleaned out in another locality. After discussing the matter at some length the board instructed its secretary to write the state health department asking what the law was in regard to cleaning out cattle cars in the city limits.

Scarlet Fever Cases. Dr. L. E. Sanford, health officer, reported that during May there had been 20 cases of scarlet fever reported in the city, mostly among the pupils of Schools 7 and 8. In reply to questions of the board he said that the scarlet fever was apparently now under control and so far this month only two cases had been reported at School 8 and one at School 7. The board discussed whether it would not be advisable to have the school surveys, employed by the education board, work under the direct supervision of the health department, but no definite action was taken.

To Attend Conference. The annual state health officers' conference will be held the latter part of this month and the board authorized Dr. Sanford and the health nurse of the board to attend.

BARBARA BELL FASHION PATTERNS

Pattern No. 1677-B

Pleated Shorts and a Long Tailored Coat

For tennis, or riding a bicycle, or any of the active, outdoor things you should be doing in the summer time this outfit is indispensable.

Shorts are the most practical garment for active sports we've found. These have a nicely fitted yoke, and inverted pleats for comfort as well as chic.

The coat is really a beauty. It's nicely tailored and fitted lines, roll collar, and widely-spaced buttons distinguish it from the clumsy, ill-fitting affairs which marred the Summer landscape when play suits first became the fashion. And as one economical soul to another, we think it would look extremely well made of white tussore or linen and worn over summer dresses.

Of course, this sort of thing must be washed very often, and must be made of a durable material.

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1677-B is designed in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 40 and 42. Corresponding bust sizes 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 (34) requires 3 1/2 yards of 36 inch material for the coat, and 1 1/2 yards of 36 inch material for the pleated shorts.

These tailored jacket-blouses are outstanding favorites for summer-time wardrobes in brightly colored and pastel hues that launder well—a feature that grows more important each season. Tucks, pleats, patch pockets and large pearl buttons are noted style details.

Among the bright colors, purple, dahlia red, emerald green, navy, brown and raspberry are smart while the pastels show pleasing contrast with buttons, scarf necklines and sleeve trimmings.

with mandarin notched collar, pleated short sleeves and a yoke effect, accented back as shown in the small sketch at top. Two patch pockets with flaps are placed even with the bottom edge and the large buttons are of pearl.

The other new jacket blouse model pictured at lower left uses French finished dress linen in dahlia red shade with pleated collar, pleated bodice and fitted waistline. Such models are ideal to include in vacation or sports wardrobes, being adaptable to so many variations of costume for town, country and sports wear.

SERVICES ANNOUNCED AT OLIVE BRIDGE M. E. CHURCH

The Rev. Oscar H. Lockett, pastor, announces that services next Sunday, June 16, will be as follows: Olive Bridge: Sunday school at 10:15. Mrs. Ezra Silkworth, superintendent, followed by the morning worship at 11. The W. V. afternoon worship service at 3:30. Samsonville, a Children's Day service in the evening at 8, to which all are invited. The pastor's subject for the day will be "Limited Resources."

On Friday evening the very special service, as formerly announced, will be held in the Olive Bridge Church at 8, and will be wholly in charge of the "Practical Bible Training Society" of Kingston. This is sure to be an enjoyable and inspiring service, and a general invitation is extended to the people of this and neighboring communities to be taken. A free-will offering will be taken.

It will be remembered that at the fall district meeting held in the church of Stamford last year the slogan, "Let's Go To Church," was adopted, and all the churches throughout the district cooperated in the movement and especially denated November as Membership Loyalty Month. At the annual Kingston District Stewards' meeting, held in the Church at Hobart last Friday, June 7, another slogan was adopted by the district, namely, "Let's Support The Church." Once more the churches are cooperating and the slogan, printed in black letters on a yellow card, is appearing upon cars and in public places in this and other communities throughout the district. The church, above every other organization or institution, is most worthy of our utmost support, so let's get back of it not only with our material gifts but also our prayers and our personal testimony.

Death House Thrift

Trenton, N. J. (AP)—Bruno Richard Hauptmann is thrifty even in the death house. When he was served with legal papers in a suit by his first counsel, James M. Fawcett, he was told that he had ten days in which to take steps to contest the case. Hauptmann asked a guard to inform C. Lloyd Fisher, of Flemington, one of his lawyers. The guard asked if he should send a telegram. "No, send him a postcard," Hauptmann replied. "I've got ten days."

CLOTHES THAT FIT PERFECTLY

TUCKS AND DARTS FLATTER EVERY FIGURE

"Her clothes fit her faultlessly!" we've heard some women exclaim enviously. "I wonder how she gets them so absolutely perfect."

We know—and now we'll tell! Either she or her dressmaker has learned a secret—how to place the right kind of tucks and darts exactly where they are needed. This clever fitting is flattering even if a woman's figure is perfect. But when the figure is a bit out of proportion (as some figures are) then these ingenious little tucks and darts just simply work wonders for it. Here's how.

Fitting Pattern to Figure. Suppose a figure is too full in the bust. Picture what happens to the blouse, unless a proper adjustment for this is made in the pattern. The extra lift of the bust in the front will make the blouse sag and wrinkle under the arm. To correct this, set in a dart from the front edge of the under-arm seam on a line with the bust line, as in diagram 1. Don't let this extend too far over the bust. It should be just long enough to take up the under-arm sag. Sometimes two darts are needed for a perfect fit.

To get a perfect fit when the shoulders are narrower than ordinary, take a dart in the shoulder seam (both front and back), as shown in diagram 2. This will bring the top of your sleeve (when it is stitched in) right to the top of your shoulders; and give you a trim, smart, tailored look.

Modern Screen Doors

The modern trend in decoration has been felt in almost every part of the home, but the old-fashioned screen door is generally left as a not too striking reminder of the days that were. If, to enter a charmingly appointed home, one must pass through an unsightly screen door, more than half of the effect of the interior is lost on the guest. Certain decorators have made a particular effort this spring to moderate this accessory to comfort. Screen doors are suggested with the lower half of this wood and the upper half wire netting, conforming, of course, to the general architecture of the house. Others have a fine latticework of wood, while still others effect a modern design with flat wooden planks set in geometric fashion, wire netting forming the remaining surface.

HOME BUILDERS' AND OWNERS' PAGE

REMODELING AND
NEW CONSTRUCTIONModel Home To Be Built In Ulster

Plans looking to the immediate construction in the Metropolitan area of 50 homes embodying the latest ideas in modern design, were announced today by Manuel Reina, chairman of the Ulster County Committee of General Electric's "New American" Demonstration Home Building Program. "This activity is a part of a national campaign to erect one of these homes for each 100,000 population throughout the country, or a total of 1,300 dwellings," added Mr. Reina. "One of these homes will be built in Ulster county and a number of builders are already considering a selection of eligible plans. This represents $10,000,000 in new housing of the better type nationally. As it is predicated upon local community financing, it would offer a great stimulus to private initiative in supply the present acute demand for homes in the medium price bracket."

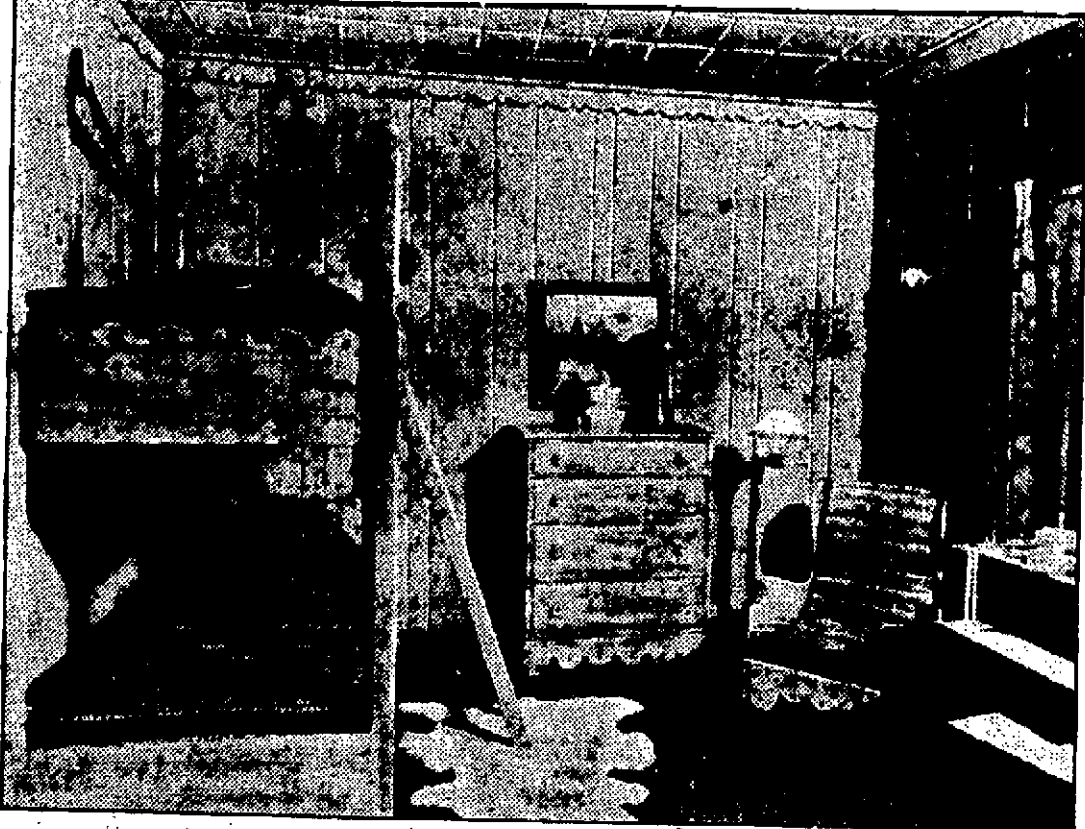

"This Home Building Program was a logical outgrowth of the $21,000 General Electric Home Electric Competition for architects announced by General Electric Company in February, 1935, issue of The Architectural Forum. Over 9,000 architects entered the contest and 2,000 designs were submitted. Twenty-two architects received prizes of from $100 to $2,500, while 10 of this total were given honorable mention. The competition was novel in that it specified these four conditions: First, that the home was to be designed to permit better health; second, increased comfort; third, greater convenience; and fourth, improved facilities for home entertainment. Emphasis was placed upon modern interior equipment."

"Two sizes of homes were eligible: One to house a family consisting of father, mother and son four years of age; the other to house a family consisting of father, mother, a son fourteen and a daughter nine years of age. Designs in the first category involved homes of approximately 20,000 cubic feet, while the second class measures 35,000 cubic feet. "Ample light and air have been provided in specifying that the smaller home is to be built upon a lot 100 by 50 feet, while the larger one is to be built on a plot 75 by 150."

"Following the awarding of the prizes and the publication of the winning designs in the April number of The Architectural Forum, it was felt that the public could not materially benefit from the great amount of time and effort that had been put forth in organizing the competition and in conducting it unless actual homes could be erected. Hence, General Electric Company now presents The "New American" Demonstration Home Building Program."

"Already a number of builders throughout this area have manifested a keen interest in the plan and

Jackie Cooper's Bedroom Captures Youngster's Fancy

This nautical boy's room is a reproduction of the one occupied by Jackie Cooper in "Tuck's Bad Boy." Such rooms are inexpensive and dear to the heart of almost every youngster. The walls are finished with cane fiber plank to carry out the general effect of a ship's cabin.

By JANET ALLEN

A nautical bedroom, with bunks on one wall and furniture that has a tang of salt air and sailing ships, has captured the fancy of many a boy. Whether he is six or sixteen, this is the kind of room he is likely to want.

The cost of converting a bedroom into a ship's cabin is no greater than that of furnishing it in some manner far less appealing to the average youngster.

Double-Decker Bed

The bunk, of course, is the principal item. Yet even a double-decker is inexpensive to build and has many advantages. If two boys are to occupy the room, each of them can have an ample bed without using up all the floor space for sleeping equipment. If there is only one boy, he is sure to have a friend in occasionally. Then the double-decker will be doubly useful.

Another essential item of furniture is a sea chest. This can be both decorative and useful. A rope handle at either end is all that is needed to give a nautical twist to any plain but sturdy chest. It is an ideal receptacle for toys, particularly if the young man occupying the room is being trained to pick up and put away his belongings.

Planked Walls

A chest of drawers, a desk and a comfortable chair for reading complete the list of major items needed. These can be purchased ready-made or specially built at modest expense.

To carry out the nautical effect, the walls of the room should be planked, although this is not absolutely essential. One of the least expensive ways to achieve the proper effect is to use Celotex interior finish plank. Being a cane fiber insulating board, this has the added advantage of affording a certain amount of sound insulation which will prevent the boy's boisterous friends from filling the entire house with their din.

This plank also has the advantage of requiring no finishing treatment. It is available in several colors, including a soft, natural tan and two shades of brown, and in either smooth, textured or rippled surface. Edges of the planks are beveled and beaded.

The same material in the form of tile may be used for finishing the ceiling.

MODERNIZATION BAROMETER
May 24, 1935

Number of modernization loans approved by Federal Housing Administration to date	174,958
Amount of credit advanced	$72,591,589
Estimated dollar value of jobs pledged in program	$404,348,842

a number have already committed themselves to proceed in accordance with the idea. Briefly, the builder must be prepared to finance the construction of a home, including the land, in consideration of which he is given a special discount on all the electrical equipment that goes into the home. This includes electric refrigerator, electric dishwasher, electric range, oil furnace, laundry equipment and other modern appliances. He is to benefit from a substantial program of national magazine advertising and local newspaper advertising which will break about the first of September. He is to appoint a local supervisory architect who is able to purchase a complete set of working drawings from our committee for $25 on any one of the homes selected.

"One virtue of this plan which in our opinion gives it tremendous value from the standpoint of the local community lies in the fact that a local architect, a local builder, local contractor, local financing and local material supplier will be used, in addition to the employment of local labor in its construction."

"The homes are to be open to inspection by the public from the first of September until the 31st of October, at which time they will pass into the possession of the ultimate purchaser. We are doing everything we can to cooperate with the Federal Housing Administration, in connection with National Better Housing and it is to be hoped that as many of the homes as possible may be started to celebrate that occasion."

"The members of the Ulster County Committee include the following: A. L. Colligan and W. May of Central Hudson Gas & Electric Corporation, and A. J. Harder, Harder Electric Company."

Purpose and Use of Chimneys Are Outlined

Contrary to common belief, a chimney is not a prop or a structural column to give support to framing members of a house, such as joists and studs. Due to the weight of the materials used in its construction, practically any chimney built on the average soil is likely to settle slightly. If the framing members of a house are attached to the chimney, settling will cause the framing members to settle also, resulting in cracked plaster and sagging floors. Furthermore, the masonry may become very hot when the furnace or other heating unit is burning.

Cracks in the masonry due to settling may develop especially when the framing members are built into the chimney in order to give some support to the upper portion of the chimney. Cracks may prevent the passage of flames or air currents of high temperature, and result in a fire starting in the walls, floor, or roof around the chimney. It is essential, therefore, that the chimney be self-supporting and so constructed as to be absolutely independent of the house framing.

It should rest on a solid foundation. Its base should extend below the frost line. The lower and less compact the soil, the larger should

SMALL COLONIAL HOME
Attractive And Inexpensive

A home does not have to cost a great deal of money to be attractive. Here's proof.

Today's residence, designed in colonial manner, has been planned with an eye on the reduced income of 1935. It has all the qualities you would expect in much more expensive homes.

First of all, there is excellent architectural precedent and design. The appointments and details, those all important elements that distinguish a home, are just as correct and authentic as they can possibly be.

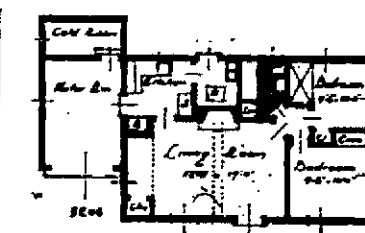

Then too, it is extremely compact and well planned, performing the living requirements of any home in an efficient and economical manner. The fact that all portions of the house are on one level, makes it a practical design for any section of the country.

There is no basement. This cuts close to a thousand dollars from construction cost. A combined heater and laundry room—in the California manner—located between the kitchen and bathroom, takes care of that basement function. A cold room—which, incidentally, should be well insulated—located in the rear of the garage, adequately serves the purpose of a fruit and vegetable room ordinarily found in the basement.

For the exterior walls, the correct material to use would be narrow white pine siding. However, if you would prefer common brick, stucco or native stone—any of these painted white—would be equally as effective and do just as well. The roof should be of natural wood shingles, unstained and allowed to color from age. The front door shown is exactly the style and type to be used (see working drawings for more complete details) and use the colonial type shutters, painted a deep forest green. For the contrasting touch, follow the architect's general plan and scale for the foundation be the footings. In general, chimney footings for the average house should be not less than 12 inches deep and should extend at least 18 inches beyond each face of the chimney. The under surface of the footing should be flat to give a maximum, uniform bearing surface.

The method of constructing chimneys in many cities and localities of the United States is governed by local building laws and ordinances. The requirements of the local fire department must often be met. Companies which have fire insurance on homes may specify minimum requirements which must be met in order to obtain insurance at the lowest possible rates. All building plans should conform to planting, as this serves to "tie" the home to its location.

The room arrangement on the inside is a beautiful example of efficient arrangement. Because there is no dining room, a portion of the living room should be furnished with a gateleg table for dining. The alcove formed by the living room closet and projection and the protruding space taken out of the living room for the refrigerator would be ideal. For some moderate climates, the fireplace is large enough to heat the home satisfactorily; however, where the winters are more severe, a small hot water system should be installed. Both bedrooms are corner rooms. In the one, a niche has been indicated which is large enough to take a double bed. This leaves a large portion of the room to be furnished in any manner desired.

At no point in this home has quality been sacrificed in the interests of economy. The construction is sound and the architecture excellent. A low construction cost has been established by clever, careful planning. There isn't an inch of waste.

There is but one way to determine accurately the cost of building this home here in this community. That is, to have a careful estimate made by a reliable contractor. To do this, it is necessary to have the complete working drawings on which all construction and architectural details are clearly shown. These may be obtained by sending $1 to Home Features Service of 84 Mobile Ave., N. E. Atlanta, Georgia.

These local requirements. It is considered good practice to construct the framing members around a chimney so that they will be at least 2 inches away from the chimney. This is easily accomplished by boxing the chimney with studs, trimmings, and headers set 2 inches away from the brickwork.

Pearl Buck Married To Richard J. Walsh After Reno Divorce

Reno, Nev., June 12 (AP).—Pearl Buck, the novelist, was honeymooning today after a double quick marital shift which made her the bride of Richard J. Walsh, New York publisher.

They left Reno by automobile immediately after last night's marriage ceremony, which was performed almost before the ink was dry on divorce decrees freeing them from former mates.

Mrs. Ruth A. Walsh, who divorced the publisher while Mrs. Buck was obtaining legal severance from John L. Buck, witnessed the marriage and sped the newlyweds on their way with best wishes.

The honeymoon highway presumably led to California, but the exact destination was not known and the couple did not disclose their plans for the future.

Mrs. Walsh, who had lived at a Lake Tahoe cottage with Mrs. Buck for six weeks while they were establishing Nevada residences for their divorces, planned to leave for New York by train today.

Both women charged their husbands, to whom they had been married for years, with cruelty and appeared to support their complaints at private court hearings which required less than 10 minutes. Property rights and custody of children were settled through agreements, the terms of which were kept secret.

The novelist, whose books are based on her experiences and observations while serving as a missionary in China, married her first husband in La Grangeville, N. Y., in 1917. They have two children, Carol, 15, and Janice, 10.

Walsh and his former wife, who were married in 1908, have a son and two daughters.

The newlyweds are partners in a company which recently published the novelist's trilogy, "House of Earth."

One hundred million fence posts! That's the number New York farmers use on their farms, estimates Richard F. Howard of the department of forestry at Cornell University.

Through His Attorneys, Cashes $10,000 Suit for Conspiracy Against Local Theatres and Union — Is an Unusual Case.

Papers in an unusual case, one alleging conspiracy, to be commenced in the Ulster County Supreme Court have been filed in the Ulster county clerk's office by Attorney Arthur B. Ewig of the law firm of Cashion & Ewig. The conspiracy alleged is in keeping Thomas J. Little of LeFevre Falls, a motion picture operator, out of work, and he is asking to recover $10,000 damages. The defendants named in the action are: David Sherry as president of Local Union, No. 637, of the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employees and Moving Picture Machine Operators of the United States and Canada, being an unincorporated association consisting of more than seven members, David Sherry, Henry Millong, Jr., Ray Adams, Mike Ross, Wesley Halwick, Lewis Short, Oley Cook, Kenneth Every, Gus Halwick, Jack Sickler, Frank Hopper, Carlton Deyo, Bert Gildersleeve, the Hudson Valley Theatrical Enterprises, Inc., and the Kingston Operating Corporation. The Hudson Valley Theatrical Enterprises, Inc., operates the Orpheum Theatre on lower Broadway, while the Kingston Operating Corporation operates the Broadway Theatre and Reade's Kingston Theatre.

The complaint alleges that between October 3, 1932 and up to the present time that the defendants have conspired, confederated, combined and agreed amongst themselves and each other to unlawfully prevent plaintiff from exercising a lawful trade or calling. To wit: that of motion picture operator or theatre and stage employee.

It will be recalled that some time ago Little was dropped from the local union and brought an action through Attorney Ewig for reinstatement which was confirmed by the courts and Little ordered reinstated in the union with all its rights and privileges.

The by-laws of the local union provide that no member of the union shall accept employment except through the business representative of the union. The complaint states that Wesley Halwick is the business representative of the union and that he had refused to grant permission to Little to work. It is alleged that all of the defendants mentioned in the complaint papers, including the theatres, have approved and condoned the acts of the union in refusing to give the plaintiff any work. The complaint alleged that when one of the members of the union was unable to work that another member would double up, doing two men's work until the other member was able to resume work, or else that an outsider would be brought in to do the work.

The action is an unusual case, and is said to be the first of its kind to be commenced in Ulster county.

Crochet Glove for Spring and Summer

Smarter—cozier—a lacy bit of glove that makes your hand look charming. Isn't that a combination to delight every woman? The glove is made in a large mesh making it summer-like in its daintiness. This mesh makes the work go more quickly too! The lacy cuff in the same mesh has a design most effectively worked in a closer stitch. This glove—exclusive with Alice Brooks—is one of the daintiest crocheted gloves to be had. It is lovely in white but can be made in black or a pastel color to match a dress.

In pattern 3377 you will find complete instructions for making the glove shown; an illustration of them and of the stitches needed; material requirements.

Charles P. Dickinson Died Tuesday, Former County Utility Head

Boston, June 12 (AP).—Charles P. Dickinson, former partner of Igor Sikorsky in the manufacture of airplanes, died here Tuesday at Massachusetts General Hospital. He was eighty-one years old.

An early developer of hydro-electric power, Mr. Dickinson built four dams and power plants on the Rondout creek in the Catskill Mountains of New York, supplying the cities of Kingston, Newburgh and Poughkeepsie with power. His firm, the Honk Falls Power Company, was for many years the only one-man owned utility, but after twenty-four years of exclusive ownership, Mr. Dickinson sold the company to the Central Hudson Gas and Electric Company in 1920. Next he was in the real estate business in Fitchburg, Mass., with the late Joseph Cushing, and built up his holdings until he was at one time the largest property owner in the city. His home was in Lunenburg, Mass.

Later, with his son, Arnold Dickinson, he entered partnership with Sikorsky, the Russian inventor and aeronautical engineer, and with him organized the Sikorsky Airplane Company at Roosevelt Field, L. I., and later at College Point, Queens. Later the partners built the $2,000,000 Sikorsky factory in Bridgeport, Conn., Mr. Dickinson retiring from the business in 1929.

Mr. Dickinson, who was born in Marlboro, Mass., was graduated from Yale in 1877, and before entering the hydro-electric business in 1897 conducted a shoe manufacturing firm established in Fitchburg by his father. He was a member of the Yale

Club of New York. Two sons, two daughters and eleven grandchildren survive.

New Law Upheld
Buffalo, N. Y., June 12 (AP).—The Brownell law which makes it a criminal offense for known criminals to "consort" is constitutional in the opinion of City Judge Robert J. Summers. Convicting four of 18 defendants arrested under the new law, Judge Summers said yesterday validity of the measure hinged on one question: "Can a state in its sovereign wisdom forbid those of evil reputation to consort with each other?" "I think this is a reasonable exercise of power," he held. The defense's argument the law was "unreasonable" was overruled. The four men face maximum penalties of a year in jail and a $500 fine.

In 20 years the volunteer life guards of Australia have saved between 20,000 and 30,000 people from drowning.

How About That Old Gas Range?

TRUE enough, a gas range that's out-of-date is not as conspicuous as an old-fashioned means of transportation, but the fact remains that it is out-of-date, and that your friends will date your home by its kitchen equipment.

But there's more than modern appearance in a new 1935 model gas range. There is a saving in time, an end to guessing about oven cooking, and a new comfort in hot weather cooking.

Kingston gas range dealers are offering special inducements for modernizing your kitchen during Kingston Modern Gas Range Month, which ends June 15.

HOLLYWOOD SIGHTS AND SOUNDS

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—The complete motion picture screen, as seen from early years of the film industry, has been a screen on which not only motion, but natural color, voices and sounds and the illusion of depth—all factors contributing to a true image of life—could be reproduced.

Sound has come, the screen talks and sings. Color, the propensities of a new, improved process predict, is immediately in the offing. But the third essential to the complete life-like screen, which is depth, "third dimension"—apparently is no nearer realization.

Technical men of the industry agree that any man who develops a practical device or process which will make images on the screen stand out from their surroundings in true perspective, give these images their third dimension, will have a contribution of tremendous importance to offer the screen.

Many Schemes Shown

For years now various inventors have struggled with the problem. About a dozen times a year the studio technical chiefs are invited to inspect as many different schemes for achieving the effect. Without exception, to date, the results obtained by inventions which are commercially possible have been so slightly superior to the third-dimension "quality" obtainable through modern photography with modern lighting and camera angles that no great excitement has been aroused by any of them. Some approach the desired effect without quite attaining it. Others give a pronounced three-dimensional effect in the center of the screen but miss it at the edges. Film men are agreed that when stereoscopic photography comes, the results must be as pronounced, so different and startlingly life-like in contrast to today's two-dimensional films, that audiences will at once be struck with its difference. Another point on which there is agreement is that any process to be acceptable must be of a type that will produce the stereoscopic effect on the film, rather than through the use of special glasses by the audience or other auxiliary device.

Experiments Proceeding

The so-called "grandeur film" or wide-screen photography of four years ago, exploited by Fox in one picture, "Happy Days," was supposed by its widening of the range of audience vision to contribute somewhat to an illusion of depth, but for all practical purposes this illusion was slight, and "grandeur" has not been heard from since.

Experiments in eastern commercial laboratories have been proceeding for years, but results so far, while considered good by studio technicians, have been attained through means deemed prohibitive in cost.

Meanwhile, the studios are relying on their trained cameramen, acquainted with lighting and camera angles, to supply on the "flat" screen something of the desired illusion. Comparing a modern film with one of the early day movies illustrates how far the screen has progressed in this respect.

That tri-dimensional films will come—either from the workshop of an obscure inventor or from the highly trained scientists of the great commercial laboratories—Hollywood is fairly confident. But when? That is another question.

Star Of No, No, Nannette To Open At New Barn Theatre

LOUISE GROODY

Louise Groody, who is the star of the new play, "Nothing Up Her Sleeve," which opens the dramatic season at the New Barn at Schoenstatt, near Saugerties, on Tuesday evening June 25, is often called the "I Wanta Be Happy Girl." For it was her famous song in "No, No, Nannette" and its refrain, "I wanta be happy, I wanta you to be happy too," which has earned millions.

The opening bill at the New Barn Theatre is not a musical comedy like "The Night Boat." "Good Morning Dearie," "No, No, Nannette" and "Hit the Deck," in which Miss Groody achieved enduring fame, but is a delightful comedy of American life similar to Miss Groody's more recent dramatic successes in "The Curtain Rises" and "The Church Mouse." Miss Louise Groody is one of the most prominent stars in the American Theatre. The plays in which she appeared always had long runs, and she holds the record of more continuous successes as in musical comedy than any living actress. Miss Groody is the first of a number of important visiting stars that New Barn audience will see as the season progresses. After its week at Saugerties, Miss Groody and the "Nothing Up Her Sleeve" company will open this fall in an important theatre in New York city.

A Friend in Need

R. F. D. 2, Ulster Co., June 11, 1935

Dear Sir:

Why does the only letter supporting the printed write-up of "The Messiah" come from a person who lives in the same house with the author of the write-up? Does one not usually secure the public support of a friend when he (in this case, she) finds he is in the wrong and that public opinion is opposed to him?

And now let us allow George Frederick Handel and his "Messiah" to rest in peace. I much prefer the prelude to the first act of "Carmen".

Very truly yours,

TUBAIST.

Kingston Daily Freeman,

Kingston, N. Y.

Gentlemen:

Having heard Handel's "Messiah" rendered by many famous musical associations, I consider the effort of the Kingston High School Music Association as well worthy of praise. One must remember that those young musicians are not yet the equals of Caruso, Melchior and Tibbett.

Therefore considering the facts involved, I think that you had better secure a more educated music critic or at least ask her to study more advance courses in music appreciation.

If Miss Reed and Miss Dubois (who so unwarrantedly criticized Mr. Stine's faithful conducting of the score of the sacred oratorio as it was originally written) want the Board of Education to place a more competent instructor of music in the high school, the people of Kingston should ask the board to appoint either of the ladies to that position. In other words, abolish musical education.

Very truly yours,

TIMOTHY O'MALLEY.

Faging Mr. Zucca:

Kingston, N. Y.

Dear Editor:

Please may I express my appreciation of the "Community Dances" at the Auditorium?

The chairman, Mr. Zucca, most certainly deserves the whole hearted support and thanks of the people of Kingston.

Putting musicians at work and making the Auditorium self-supporting are two splendid results of his efforts, but to my mind, giving the people of this section the opportunity to dance under ideal conditions.

Making Applications For Camp Happyland

Fortunate are the boys and girls who will spend a month this summer at Ulster County's Health Camp for Children—Camp Happyland—which has been in operation for 8 years. The boys will spend the month of July there and the girls the month of August.

Here, under experienced trained workers, these children will be taught many things which will make them healthier and happier now and during later life. Would that it were possible to accommodate all who have applied. Those happy days will mean much to them in days to come.

The purpose of this health camp is to build up and strengthen children who are underweight, undernourished or who have been exposed to that devastating disease, tuberculosis.

In addition to the essential health provisions of its program, the camp emphasizes in its educational activities, habit, building through routine procedure. They are taught health habits and have supervised play and rest. In their training in play activity, the children develop growing muscles through the use of splendid equipment at the camp, such as balancing boards, swings, steps and slides.

The staff, personnel is as follows: The county nurse, who is the responsible head of the camp; a graduate nurse; a dietitian; two counselors. An adequate kitchen staff is maintained and wholesome meals are planned and served.

Application blanks for admission to the camp have been placed throughout the county. Children between the ages of 6 and 15, inclusive, may be referred to the Ulster County Tuberculosis Association, 74 John street, Kingston.

Visitors are always welcome at the camp when it is open. Citizens of Ulster county may well take pride in this splendid health-giving work which is made possible because they bought Christmas Seals.

PREVIEWED

Broadway: "The Flame Within." Ann Harding and Herbert Marshall prove to be an engaging romantic team in this story of a woman who untangles the lives of others and who is finally caught in the throes of a love she did not seek but whose power she cannot control. It is one of the best characterizations Miss Harding has given the screen and Mr. Marshall is excellent in a role which requires all his skill. Maureen O'Sullivan, Louis Hayward and Henry Stephenson are also well cast in featured parts and Edmund Goulding both wrote and directed the picture.

An added feature of the Broadway program will be the stage presentation of the Edwin School of Dancing. Sixty Kingston youngsters will be seen in an elaborate revue with special lighting and scenic effects. Roger Baer will be at the organ.

Orpheum: "Our Daily Bread" and "Against the Law." King Vidor goes Socialist in the opening attraction and shows what might happen in a desperate community if all work as a unit for the salvation of all. A serious drought menaces a community in the west, and families face starvation and loss of everything until a leader collects all the men together and explains that the practice of Socialism will free them from all disaster. It is an interesting film, with unusual photography, and the ever present directorial genius of King Vidor is evident throughout the film. A thought provoking play with a narrative plot structure. "Against the Law" offers John Mack Brown and Sally Blane in a fast stepping melodrama.

Kingston: "Strange Wives" and "10 Ralse." Edith Wharton's novel, "Broad Upon the Waters," has been revised and altered into the opening show at the Kingston. The cast includes Roger Pryor, Esther Ralston, June Clayworth, Cesar Romero, Ivan Lebedev, Ralph Forbes and Valeria Hobson. The story concerns a rich young bachelor who falls under the spell of a Russian princess and marries her. Soon after this, her relatives begin to arrive in droves until the collection of laws begins to have the vastness of the Russian revolution. "10 Ralse" is the second full length feature with Edward Everett Horton, Karen Morley and Alan Dinehart featured. The story centers around a hard working clerk who wants to marry but who needs a large salary if he is to support a wife. The show is alive with humor, pathos and realistic acting.

Minnie Rhodes Found Dead Of Heart Attack

Minnie Rhodes, age 65, was found dead Tuesday evening about 7 o'clock at her home, 562 Broadway, by Charles Elmendorf, son of Augustus Elmendorf, who also resides at that address. The police were notified and Coroner Lester DuBois of New Paltz was called. She was last seen about the premises Monday and when her absence was noticed Tuesday evening when Mr. Elmendorf returned home he made an investigation and found her dead in bed.

Dr. Kenneth LeFever was called and found the woman dead of heart attack and Coroner DuBois was called to make an investigation. On his arrival Mr. DuBois made inquiry as to when she was last seen and learned that it had been the previous day. Apparently she died some time between Monday afternoon and Tuesday evening. Coroner DuBois gave as his verdict, death from coronary thrombosis.

Funeral services will be held from the W. N. Conner Funeral Home, 236 Fair street, Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Interment will be in Montpelier cemetery.

Milk Plan Rejected

Utica, N. Y., June 12 (AP).—The proposed federal licensing plan for milk distributors and handlers has been rejected by directors and delegates of the New York Milk Producers Federation. Meeting here yesterday for a "warm-up" gathering before a statewide conference of dairymen tomorrow, the members of the federation turned down the licensing plan because they said it would concentrate too much power in one man. Other objections were registered against exemption of some cooperatives and the fixing 3.5 per cent butter fat content as the price basis, instead of three per cent as at present.

Gentlemen:

May I, as one of the students who took part in the presentation of "The Messiah," June 7, by the Kingston High School Music Association, be permitted to make a brief reply to one of the letters published in your column, June 11?

I shall not comment on the write-up of the concert by Clara D. Norton Reed for it seems to me self-evident that her criticism was wholly unfair and prejudicial. However, I should like to say that the criticism made of our director, Mr. Stine, in the letter of Ida F. DuBois is even more unfair and bigoted. Mr. Stine worked long and tirelessly to prepare the students to present so great an undertaking as "The Messiah," and in the opinion of the majority of people, he was successful in doing so.

As one of the musicians participating in the concert, I resent the implication that we "jazzed it up," so to speak. Considering the fact that the Oratorio, "Elijah," presented several months ago, received only the most favorable comment in your paper; and that in this oratorio the solo parts were sung by the same singers who "jazzed it up" in "The Messiah," it would seem that the elapse of several months, or perhaps, as Miss DuBois would undoubtedly say, Mr. Stine's baleful influence has utterly deteriorated their sense of propriety, reverence, and general musical knowledge. Perhaps, but, personally I have more faith in the musical ability of Miss Bailey, Miss Clinton, Mr. Rabble, and Mr. Clark than in our critic's knowledge of classical music.

Miss DuBois, it would seem, is eager for the removal of Mr. Stine from K.H.S. for "the good of the young people." May I assure Miss DuBois that Mr. Stine has yet to undermine our musical morals; and when he does so we "young people" are quite capable of taking action for our own good without assistance or advice from a disinterested outsider. I trust that, when again next year the Kingston High School Music Association presents its annual concert, some of the prejudice, conceit, and bigotry of a small minority of would-be critics may have been forgotten; or, if that is too much to expect, that they will at least have the grace to hide their narrow-minded pettiness where none may see.

However, on arrival of Dr. Snyder, Mr. Willmütz was dead.

Shackett Allows But 1 Hit But Loses To Formost, 2-1

After being kicked around in their last three games in the City League the Forst Formosts snapped out of their slump at the Athletic Field, Tuesday evening and handed Schryvers' Lumbermen, pace setters, a 2 to 1 trimming. The defeat broke the Lumbermen's winning streak and, instead of holding a commanding lead over the other clubs in the loop, are practically tied for first place with the North Rondout Social Club and Hercules, although they lead in percentage points.

The score indicates how close the battle was, and the Formosts no doubt can be classed as the bitless wonders, for they produced only one clean blow off "King Kong" Shackett, Schryvers' hurler.

Shackett displayed a fast ball that would have won any ordinary ball game, but he had the misfortune of running against a pitcher who also had plenty of speed in Jimmy Martin.

Martin, making his initial appearance on the mound for the season, was found for two more hits than Shackett, but two free trips to first base proved Shackett's downfall. Both passes were turned into runs. Poor fielding on the part of his teammates helped the runners home.

From the outset it looked like a pitchers' battle for Martin fanned the first three men to face him and Shackett set two down by way of the strikeout route in the opening stanza. In all Martin fanned eight while Shackett breezed his fast one by seven.

Schryvers had plenty of chances of winning. In the second and third innings they left three men waiting on the bases for some one to send them home, only to be disappointed.

Free transportation to Martin paved the way for Formosts' first run in the second inning. He stole second and errors by Davitt and Slicker allowed him to cross the platter.

Formosts' second run was the only earned run of the game and even that was spotty. Knight received a walk this time and also pilfered second. He registered on two infield outs.

Schryvers' run came at the expense of Martin himself. He gave the Lumbermen a life when he misused on Joyce's grounder. Thomas followed it with a single and on a fielder's choice Joyce tallied.

SIDELINERS

The sun was stronger than usual and stopped the game earlier.

Martin prefers playing first base to pitching. He makes a good man on the initial sack, but a better one on the mound.

Shackett was the only batter to make a bid for the case of Burgomaster donated by Fitzgerald Bros.

Bill Messing, Formosts' catcher, did a neat job grabbing Martin's low ones.

Only one full game separates the first five teams in the standing of the clubs after last night's upset.

Jack Robins, field captain of the Lumbermen, ran the game from the bench. Jimmy Volker took up his duties behind the bat. It was the first time in a long while that Volker donned the mask.

"Moore" Tiano will be the receiver.

Superchargers Win Seventh Straight

It took the fast stepping Graham Superchargers of Napanoch ten innings to defeat the fast Washington Heights A. C. of Middletown on Nordland Field, Napanoch, Sunday afternoon. The final score was 3-2. Quick, who was on the mound for the Superchargers was put into the hole in the second inning when two walks and two errors netted the visitors two runs. Quick and his teammates settled down and held the visitors scoreless through the rest of the game. Up until the eighth inning Quick had a one hit game in the palm of his hand. Terwilliger being the only man to connect. In the eighth with two gone Broas hit over third base for what was apparently a foul ball but DeWitt called it fair and Broas got credit for a two bagger. Quick retired the side by striking out his namesake. In the eighth, the Superchargers tied the score when Wood got life on an error by Broas. Bellman flied out, O'Neill walked and Ferraro went down on strikes. With the count 3 and 2, Blackwell hit a long double, scoring Wood and O'Neill and tying the score. In the ninth it was three up and three down for the visitors, while the Superchargers got Wynkoop and Widlitz on second and third but the fall end of the batting order could not connect. In the tenth the visitors threatened, DeWitt led off with a single, Terwilliger flied out, Fallon singled and DeWitt went to second. Smith, batting for Sayre, got a life when Wynkoop threw out DeWitt at third. Broas then singled but fast fielding held Fallon at third. Widlitz took Quick's easy grounder and threw to Bellman for the final out.

The Superchargers won out in the tenth when Ferraro got a life when Broas errored. On an attempted sacrifice, Ferraro stole second. Blackwell went down on strikes. McAndrews singled putting Ferraro on third. Wynkoop then connected for what should have been a home run, but Ferraro's crossing the plate ended the game.

On Sunday, June 16, the Superchargers will line up against the North Rondout Social Club of Kingston. This looks like a tough assignment for the Superchargers and a large crowd is expected to follow the Social Club boys to Napanoch to see the game.

Kingston H.S. Athletes Awarded Letters At Assembly Today

At the assembly period in the high school this morning, the members of the baseball, golf and tennis teams were awarded their varsity letters. The awards were made by Warren Johnson, pinch-hitting for Ben Toffel, president of the Athletic Association, who is laid up with an infected leg.

The members of the baseball varsity who received their varsity "K's" were Captain Jack Murphy, Jack Linden, Chappy Van Derrze, Ralph DeCicco, Mac Tiano, Clayt Harder, Tom Maines, Elmer Hopper, Lou Glenn, Ed Zoller and Abe Novis, manager.

Of these who received their letters this morning, five have played their last baseball game under the Kingston High School banner. These are Jack Murphy, Jack Linden, Mac Tiano, Clayt Harder and Ed Zoller. The rest and almost all of those on the Jayvee team will be back at school for next year's team.

Glenn Three-Letter Man

When Lou Glenn received his letter this morning, he became the only three letter man in Kingston High School at the present time, he having also received his letter in football and basketball. He is the first three letter man since Tony Debrosky in 1932.

Members of the Jayvee baseball team were awarded "K's" or the minor award. The members of this team were Tony Reinhardt, Ed Bock, Ben Toffel, Ed McManus, Tom McManus, Bartroff, Stoll, Coley, Struble, McGrath and Rowe.

Tennis and Golf

Members of the tennis varsity who received varsity letters were Captain Nevt Beichert, Fessenden, Siegel and Hasbrouck.

Golf team members who received varsity letters were Captain Helzmann, Holcomb, Benjamin, Murray and Hung. Letters were also awarded to Warren Johnson, treasurer of the Athletic Association, and to Charlie Boice, manager of intramural sports.

Successful Baseball Season

The awarding of baseball letters this morning brings to a close one

Kingston Athletes Bard College Record

The record of three Kingston men who have participated in athletics at Bard College, Columbia University, during the past season is given as follows:

Jay Molyneux, junior, 274 Clinton avenue. Basketball, 3 years, captain 34-35; forward, fine scorer and floor man. Baseball, 3 years, third baseman, good hitter, fair fielder.

Dominic Cloni, sophomore, 20 Sycamore street. Basketball, junior varsity one year, forward. Baseball, substitute catcher, fine prospect next season.

Harry LeFever, senior, 126 Wall street. Basketball, junior varsity one year, forward. Tennis, three years, captain 34-35, played No. 2 man, won majority of matches this year.

of Kingston High's most successful baseball seasons in recent years. With a team slated to get nowhere at the beginning of the season, because of poor pitching, Coach Kins has brought this year's team through the DUSO wars with only one defeat and a tie for the championship. Kingston's only defeat was suffered at the hands of Newburgh High. If this game had been played near the end of the season instead of being the first game, the Klasmen would undoubtedly have fared better than they did, for in this game Kingston had only reached a fraction of the form that she was to show later in the season. Bud Zoller had never pitched in a varsity league contest, and Lou Glenn had not shown his control that later in the season marked him as one of the league's leading pitchers.

Now that the season is over there will be no play-off series for the championship because Kingston is the only one of the three schools that would want to play in such a series. For Jervis and Newburgh do not want to play for varied reasons. There has been only one other tie in the history of the DUSO League for a championship. This was when Poughkeepsie was still in the league and was also a baseball tie. It was between Poughkeepsie, Newburgh and Middletown. This tie was not played off either.

By The Associated Press

Bob "Lefty" Grove, the costly darling of the Red Sox whose sore arm was a sadder blow than the depression to Boston fandom, is riding his fire ball back into the favor of the bleacherites.

His record gives him four games in the win column and an equal number on the darker side but in the last three games, two of which he won, he has shown some of the stuff that once made him the outstanding pitcher in baseball.

Yesterday, the Red Sox won both ends of a double header from Detroit, 3-1 and 5-2, yanking Mickey Cochrane's boys out of fourth position and moving in there themselves. The double win brought them within one point of the third place Cleveland Indians.

Grove was in there in the first encounter, allowing only five hits to best Lefty Joe Sullivan, on the mound for Detroit. The veteran fireballer, who has been pretty wild at times this season, had his old-time magic control and he issued nary a walk.

Wes Ferrell pitched another five hitter for the Sox in the second game but he gave up six walks.

But if history was made yesterday, it was made in negative fashion by the league-leading Giants.

Reds Draw Giants Twice

The lowly Cincinnati Reds drubbed them twice in a doubleheader, in full sight of the home folk. They scored a total of two runs; one in each game, as the young, fighting Reds scored 4 and 3 respectively. One has to reach back into the time-browned records 16 years to find another instance when the Reds won a double-header at the Polo Grounds.

Clyde Castleman was handed his second defeat of the season as Tony Freitas let the league leaders down with seven hits in the first game and Leroy Hermann, former Cub pitcher, stopped the vaunted Giants' attack at five hits in the second.

In the other National League game, the Phillies defeated the Chicago Cubs 10-4 and the Pittsburgh Pirates opened their six game series with Brooklyn with a 4-0 shutout to go into a tie with St. Louis for second place.

In the American League, the White Sox divided a doubleheader with Washington, losing the opener 9-8 and winning the after piece 9-3.

The Yankees widened their league lead by winning both games of their twin bill with the St. Louis Browns, 7-4 and 3-3. At Cleveland the Athletics walked off with both games of a doubleheader, 4-2 and 5-1. The Cardinals-Braves game at Boston was postponed.

Baseball to Make Initial Appearance at 1936 Olympic Games

Baseball will make its initial appearance on the Olympic program in the games to be held at Berlin in 1936.

The Amateur Baseball Congress, the only baseball body holding official membership in the American Olympic Association and charged with the responsibility of organizing the Olympic baseball program for 1936, is making every effort to perfect a nation-wide organization that will afford every American boy an opportunity to compete for the team to represent his country against Japan and other baseball-minded countries.

Particularly are they interested in the outcome of the demonstration games to be played against representatives of Japan at Berlin in 1936.

To be successful baseball must be completely organized this year, it is stated, as it will be impossible to have state, regional and the final Olympic trials crowded into one year.

Necessary Qualifications

Every American boy who is a citizen of the United States is eligible for membership in the Amateur Baseball Congress providing—

That he is an amateur.

That he is a member of a bona fide baseball team and that said team holds active membership in the Congress.

Said membership of an institution, federation, industrial school, college, university or athletic club team or league in the Amateur Baseball Congress automatically registers each and every player. Said membership will also qualify each and every player on a team for state Olympic trials.

No former professional baseball player is eligible for Olympic trials or competition.

There is no age limit for players. Teams or players interested should address the secretary of the Amateur Baseball Congress, Old Federal Building, Miami, Fla.

CLON'S CLOWNS GO AFTER SIXTH STRAIGHT WIN TONIGHT

Not Much Excitement Over Baer-Braddock Fight Thursday Night

By ALAN GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Editor)

New York, June 12 (AP).—Despite its dramatic prospects and the probability it will be a surprisingly hard fought match, the world's heavyweight championship fight between Champion Max Baer and Challenger James J. Braddock tomorrow night has failed to arouse either the fine frenzy of excitement or the sharp differences of opinion generally associated with such momentous fistic affairs.

It may not be a financial flop, all things considered, but it certainly lacks drawing power. Madison Square Garden's promoters predict a "gate" of $350,000 at their Long Island City Bowl but on the basis of advance sales they appear to be optimistic. It may not exceed $250,000.

The widespread impression that Braddock, while a very game and deserving young man, is no match for the free-swinging, colorful and confident Californian has, no doubt, affected the advance interest, or lack of it. Braddock's record, despite his comeback within the past year, hardly justifies much confidence in his chances.

Has Taken Nine Lickings

During the four years since 1931, in which Baer has fought his way to the top, Braddock has been whipped nine times. The Jersey battler is three years older, slower and carries a less potent punch than the champion.

These indisputable facts account largely for Baer's status as a 5 to 1 choice in most betting books on Broadway. There's no Braddock money, even at that figure.

Braddock does not figure to win but the hunch in this corner is that he will make it interesting for Baer and display the kind of courage that brings a fighter up from the reap to turn the tide.

The challenger's best chance, if any, will be to get the jump on the champion late in the fight, but he will be well advised not to run undue risks. The longer the chances will be, even if he has to get up off the floor a few times to convince Baer he can "take it."

Crews Take Trial Spins at Poughkeepsie

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., June 12 (AP).—The Hudson is a busy river these days with the sweeps of six colleges churning its moody waters.

After days in which a high wind kicked up whitecaps on the river surface, the sun beamed down yesterday and waters calmed to allow all of the crews to take trial spins. Washington, California and Pennsylvania leaned on the oars in time trials.

Navy, the only absentee, was due to arrive late today to wind up its training for the "biggest crew race of the year."

Coach Al Ulbrickson of Washington, who is undecided as to which of two crews he will send to the starting mark in the varsity race, sent his present varsity and Jayvee shells over a four mile course as he held a watch on them. The varsity was clocked, unofficially, in 20:45. California negotiated the distance in 20:35.

Coach Rusty Callow of Pennsylvania, after putting his shell over the route, said the time was "fast enough to suit me."

Ulbrickson, who says his present Jayvee boat has better odds than the varsity, said the Jayvee shell left eight lengths in the ruck by the present varsity but he still was undecided as to which he would opt for the most important race. On Friday Ulbrickson will send both shells over the route—again, this time to make his decision.

Ky Enright of California said he was pleased with the showing of his varsity during the morning workout. They were clocked in 5:09 over the last mile.

Cornell had its first workout on the river yesterday, joining Columbia and Syracuse in light workouts.

"TO RATHER CRASH INTO THE BLEACHERS THAN HAVE ANOTHER BLOW-OUT"

Al Simmons
Chicago White Sox

"I WAS spending along about 40 miles an hour in Arizona on my way to the spring training camp in California," says Al Simmons, "when one of my tires blew out. My car shot off the road. Right then and there my ball-playing days were nearly ended. You'll find Goodrich Silvertowns on my car now."

Remember, Goodrich Silvertowns may save your life! They're the only tires in the world with the Life-Saver Golden Ply, the Goodrich invention that retains the tire by today's high speeds. If you want real blow-out protection—and months of extra mileage—put Silvertowns on all your wheels. They cost no more than other standard tires.

Lunch Bag Clue Led To Arrest of a Boy

This morning police headquarters received a telephone call from the Masonic Club on Albany avenue, that a thief had been cornered in the building and asking that police be sent. One of the radio cars received a broadcast message and hurried to the building.
There it was found that a brick had been hurled through one of the rear windows and that the intruder had then reached in and released the latch unlocking the window through which he climbed.
A search through the building revealed that the intruder had made good his escape, and that although he had planned on taking money and cigarettes he had been frightened when he heard some one open the front door with a key.
Officer Soper in searching the building found a lunch bag. On the bag was the name of the owner, and the school he attended. The officer hurried over to the school and questioned the boy, who is 13 years old, asking him if he had taken his lunch with him to school. The boy told Officer Soper he had left his lunch bag in the rear of the Masonic Club.
The officer took the boy to police headquarters where he was held until his mother arrived. The case will have a hearing later in police court.

ETHIOPIA : WAR THREAT LOOMS for BLACK EMPIRE

5. The Army's One Cannon
While across Ethiopia's borders Italy concentrates such modern warfare detachments as flame throwers, the black empire's army sees but about its business of "training for any eventuality." European instructors say that in two years the Ethiopian forces have approached the perfection of European soldiers and what is lacking in training is made up for in enthusiasm. Here is seen one of the "heavy" artillery soldiers finding the range with the "Black Empire's" only large cannon.

To raise used car advertising and merchandising to new standards of excellence and dignity, the nationwide dealer organization of the Chevrolet Motor Company has arranged for a cooperative national campaign in newspapers and magazines. The advertising will carry to the public the pledge of the dealer organization that all its members will stand back of the used cars they sell. That is, used car prospects are to receive the same assurance that is given to purchasers of new cars—that the car has been tested, tuned, and conditioned, and is ready to give satisfactory service.

More Committees For Sale of the Blind

The Kingston Sale for the Blind which is now being held at 280-282 Fair street plays a very important part in the lives of the hundreds of blind workers. After months of patient instruction they have been taught to make household articles of a most desirable design and perfect workmanship. If these sightless employees of the Albany Association are to be self-supporting, their merchandise must have a ready sale. Generous patronage will insure steady employment. The committees from the various churches of Kingston ask all to give this most necessary patronage. Buy from the blind.
If you should go into a workshop for the blind, you would find rows of factory Singer sewing machines, running by electricity, each operated by a sightless girl. These operators have no special guide, but use the machines in exactly the same manner as the skilled, sighted sewers. They use hemmers, binders and other appliances, and produce articles at an amazing rate of speed. It takes only a few minutes to bind an apron and only a few seconds to hem a towel.
By a special arrangement with the manufacturers of the Lady Pepperell products, this sheeting and tubing, as it comes from the factory, is sent to the workshop for the blind, and there it is hemmed into sheets and pillow cases by these skillful sightless workers who are authorized to use the trade mark of this well known brand. Investigate this line. You will like it, for the price is most reasonable.
The following is the time of service and the committees who will conduct the sale on Friday, June 14: 10 a. m.-2 p. m., St. John's Episcopal Church: Mrs. Willis Locke, chairman; Mrs. E. Hoff, Mrs. W. Van Natten, Mrs. A. Frilog, Mrs. A. Shelley, Mrs. A. Hazenbush, Mrs. F. Lease, Mrs. R. Constable, Mrs. H. Battenfeld, Mrs. R. Craft, Mrs. W. Elston, Mrs. F. Bushnell, Mrs. H. Kapreilian, Mrs. P. Brinnier, Mrs. A. E. Fronefeld.
2:30-5:30 p. m., St. Mary's Catholic Church: Mrs. Julia E. Kane, chairman; Mrs. Gertrude Bradley, Mrs. Nan Garvan, Miss Mary Geary, Miss Catherine Welch, Mrs. William Rafferty, Mrs. Hilda Mahar, Mrs. Joan Goldrick, Miss Mary McGill, Miss Anna Ryan, Miss Marie Dunne, Mrs. T. Donovan, Miss Sara Rigner, Mrs. G. Kogel, Mrs. Joseph Murphy.
